

CERAMICS SCHOLARSHIP

in memory of RUMI TSUDA

Choplet has a small number of scholarships available for people with limited means, but a strong desire to develop their skills or to experience ceramics for the first time. Choplet Studio will also provide each scholarship recipient with a $100 budget in clay, tools and firing.

The deadline for the current round of applications is November 20, 2022.

Please describe (in 200 words or less) how you would benefit from a scholarship including what program especially interests you and why being active in ceramics is important for you specifically. If you wish, you may also send up to three jpegs (max 1280 pixels long dimension) of ceramics or other art you have made.

Without a scholarship... (check all that apply)

I am not able to afford to attend Choplet.

I will be able to attend but only for a short time; the scholarship will allow me to continue my study longer or for more classes than I could otherwise afford.

I can attend, but it will use most of my discretionary budget.

I can attend, but I will have to work more hours for money to afford it and that will reduce the time I can devote to ceramics.

I can attend, but I rely on my parents to afford it and it is a big portion of their discretionary budget.

I can still afford to attend without too much difficulty.

I attest that the content of my application is true to the best of my knowledge. I understand that Choplet reserves the right to revoke a scholarship if it discovers the application includes false information.
